Yeah the recipe videos are kind of a funny idea...I think people like to post just about anything themselves though, so might as well include that!

I always thought you were different...ever since I first saw your page on DA. You speak from your heart and your pictures also reflect that. The more I got to know you the more I understood your pictures. At the end of it all, in my opinion, it doesn't matter how many people think you're good, if you're popular or make 'pretty pictures'. It's about who you are, how passionate you are about your art and balancing it out with making a living. But mostly keeping it real...that's why I read your entries and enjoy your work. Have a great Holiday Season! And a kickass New Year.

Thanks for the feedback! This was a really creepy place in the Palais Royales in Paris just as you enter the gardens. Maybe it was just the juxtaposition of the pillars and the palace that made it creepy, I'm not sure. But I definitely love this photo too.. Paris is a wonderful place to be. -CAC

Chris, Thank you for such inspiring work and frank words. I will shoot a roll of black and white film with my Nikon F4 over the next 7 days because you have reminded me of the beautiful images that are out there to be captured. Digital was driving me crazy!! Tony (Sydney, Australia)http://media.ubec.com/images/60x45.jpg http://media.ubec.com/images/60x45.jpg

Thank you. Your photos make me want to ace my geology final (among others) and move on to bigger, better things.

What the heck are you doing in Paris??? Be honest, did you have anything to do with those new notes... just stirring things up for a good picture? - Anyhow remember to duck when bricks starts flying again :-)

Hey Chris, been watching your work for a while now on DA. Everyone has seemed to have moved over here.....so thought it was about time I joined :)
