

Tantrum!

Sorry, Suri,
you can't have a puppy!

IT WAS A CASE of unrequited puppy love for Suri Cruise.

Katie Holmes got the stink eye from her 6-year-old daughter after the actress apparently refused to buy Suri an adorable puppy she really, really wanted from a Manhattan pet store.

Suri pouted and made the saddest puppy eyes when her mom put her foot down and led her away from the black-and-white pooch — a mix of Yorkshire terrier and Maltese — on Saturday at Citipups.

Photos of Suri's dog day afternoon showed Tom Cruise's little girl leaving the pet shop clutching a stuffed animal and blanket.

Another photo captured the forlorn, brown-haired Suri throwing what appeared to be a mommy-I-hate-you tantrum in their car as a bodyguard drove them away.

Suri's heartbreaking canine crush came just days after her mother won primary custody of her in her divorce settlement with Cruise.

Holmes, 33, filed for divorce June 28 in New York, blindsiding Cruise, 50.

Sources contend, Holmes, who was raised Catholic, was worried about Suri's future involvement in Cruise's Scientology religion.

Since reaching the divorce settlement, Holmes has enrolled Suri in Manhattan's prestigious Convent of the Sacred Heart Catholic School, reported E! Online.

The upper East Side all-girls school, which charges $39,000 a year tuition, is the same school that educated Lady Gaga and Caroline Kennedy.
